

All Blacks doctor Deb Robinson uses a high quality ear-piece that links to her Tait P25 radio, allowing her to roam between sidelines and pitch.

All Blacks baggageman Errol Collins uses the Tait P25 radios to relay information to coaching staff. Pictured with All Black prop Neemia Tialata.

Tait radios provide instant secure and accurate communications between the All Blacks management team, who are at various locations of a rugby stadium during a match.

All Blacks Doctor Deb Robinson relays vital player updates to the coaching staff with a Tait P25 radio. Pictured with All Black prop Neemia Tialata.

Additional photos to be used in case studies: Tait P25 radios ensure instant secure and accurate communications between All Blacks coaching staff to allow the players to concentrate on their jobs on the field.

All photos by Simon Baker

