EMILY MARGO

Emily Margo has embarked on an Honours degree in Philosophy and Politics at the University of New South Wales in Sydney. She has won several academic awards and has studied in Germany, the Middle East and the United States.

Awards have taken Emily to the Goldman Sachs Global Leadership Program in New York, to Georgetown University in Washington and to the St. Gallen Symposium in Switzerland. She has been an intern at the Brookings Institution in DC and in policy development in the New South Wales State Government.

Volunteer work comes naturally to Emily and in 2008 she was chosen as Young Citizen of the Year by her local government council. That same year she served as an external advisor to youth-based think tank "Meeting of the Minds". Emily is a co-founder of 180 Degrees Consulting and works part-time as an editorial assistant at The Australian Financial Review.

A keen hiker, Emily loves the wide horizons of the Australian landscape and likes to sketch. She plays touch football and the drums.
