

Doing Business 2014* Fact Sheet: East Asia and the Pacific

- Fifteen of 25 economies in East Asia and the Pacific implemented at least one regulatory reform making it easier to do business in the year from June 2, 2012, to June 1, 2013—25 reforms in total.¹
- Since 2005, 96 percent of economies in the region have implemented business regulatory reforms in the areas measured by Doing Business. Together, the 25 economies recorded 216 reforms.² Vietnam implemented the most number of reforms in the region with 21 reforms during this period, followed by China with 18.
- China is among the 20 economies worldwide that have narrowed the gap with global good practices the most since 2005. The Lao People's Democratic Republic, Timor-Leste, Malaysia, Cambodia, and the Solomon Islands are among the top 50 narrowing this gap the most.
- Singapore has the highest global ranking on the ease of doing business, followed by Hong Kong SAR, China, New Zealand, Malaysia, and the Republic of Korea are also among the top 10.
- The Philippines is among the global top 10 improvers this year—the economies making the biggest improvement in business regulation over the past year. The government implemented regulatory reforms in three areas. The introduction of a fully operational online filing and payment system made tax compliance easier for companies. Simplified occupancy clearances eased construction permitting. And new regulations guarantee borrowers' right to access their data in the country's largest credit bureau.
- Data were collected for the first time this year for Myanmar. The country has the region's lowest ranking on the ease of doing business, at 182 out of 189 economies. Challenges are particularly acute in the areas of starting a business (where it ranks at the bottom globally), enforcing contracts (where it ranks at 188), and protecting investors (where it ranks at 182).
- This year's report features case studies highlighting the Republic of Korea's electronic court system, Malaysia's electronic tax filing and payment system, and Singapore's electronic trade single window.

¹ Excludes Australia, Japan, the Republic of Korea, and New Zealand, which are classified as OECD high-income economies.

² Excludes Australia, Japan, the Republic of Korea, and New Zealand, which are classified as OECD high-income economies.

Note: The distance to frontier measure shows how far on average an economy is at a point in time from the best performance achieved by any economy on each Doing Business indicator since 2003 or the first year in which data for the indicator were collected. The measure is normalized to range between 0 and 100, with 100 representing the best performance (the frontier). The regional averages exclude Myanmar, which was added to the Doing Business sample after 2009. They also exclude Australia, Japan, the Republic of Korea, and New Zealand, which are classified as OECD high-income economies. The figure shows individual scores only for the 12 economies with the biggest improvements in the region; the arrows indicate those making the largest advances toward the frontier.

About the Doing Business report series

The joint World Bank and IFC flagship Doing Business report analyzes regulations that apply to an economy's businesses during their life cycle, including start-up and operations, trading across borders, paying taxes, and resolving insolvency. The aggregate ease of doing business rankings are based on 10 indicators and cover 189 economies. Doing Business does not measure all aspects of the business environment that matter to firms and investors. For example, it does not measure the quality of fiscal management, other aspects of macroeconomic stability, the level of skills in the labor force, or the resilience of financial systems. Its findings have stimulated policy debates worldwide and enabled a growing body of research on how firm-level regulation relates to economic outcomes across economies. This year's report marks the 11th edition of the global Doing Business report series and covers 189 economies.
