EDUCATION ON FILM

AT BERKELEY

A thoroughly absorbing documentary exploring multiple facets of America's most famously progressive public university, while students and administrators negotiate the gathering threats to accessible tertiary education.

"I can't think of another film portrait of higher education that matches this one for comprehensiveness, intellectual depth, and hope." — David Denby, New Yorker

2013 | USA | Director: Frederick Wiseman | Documentary | 244 minutes

2013 | Austria/Germany | Director: Erwin Wagenhofer | Documentary | 107 minutes |
In English, Mandarin, German, French and Spanish, with English subtitles

ALPHABET

German filmmaker Erwin Wagenhofer travels Europe and Asia to assemble evidence in favour of less regimented and competitive notions of education than those prevailing throughout much of the world (including New Zealand).

"We do have the power of imagination. I believe we systematically destroy this capacity in our children routinely, unthinkingly." — Sir Ken Robinson

SEPIDEH – REACHING FOR THE STARS

In a provincial town in Iran, young Sepideh dreams of becoming an astronomer, although almost no one she knows thinks this a fit pursuit for a young woman. Filmed over several years, this doco traces her surprising progress.

This stirring documentary tells the story of a teenage Iranian girl determined and spirited enough to defy gender expectations and pursue a career in astronomy.

Sepideh – Drømmen om stjernerne | 2013 | Denmark/Iran | Director: Berit Madsen
88 minutes | Documentary | In Farsi with English subtitles

INREALLIFE

Checking in with a generation of British kids who never knew life before social media, Beeban Kidron asks the rest of us to consider why anyone should worry about their being so totally plugged in.

“Beeban Kidron’s smart and serious documentary offers a survey of the virtual world’s creeping infiltration into our lives.”
— Anthony Quinn, The Independent

2013 | UK | Director: Beeban Kidron | 90 minutes | Documentary
R16 sexual material, offensive language, content that may disturb
