Climate Action 2017

Unchecked climate change threatens everything - our health, our families, our homes, our economy, our jobs, our security, our Pacific neighbours, and our land, food and water. Everybody, from farmers to skiers, from coffee drinkers to chocolate lovers, is going to be affected by climate change.

It is the single biggest threat to humanity.

But we have a chance to turn things around. If we work together and take action NOW, we can protect the things we love. Around the world and here in Aotearoa New Zealand, people, companies and organisations are taking action and working on solutions - but our Government is lagging behind and failing to show leadership.

We're coming together to hold our leaders to account and to tell them it's time to protect our families, communities and environment from climate change - it's time to put people before polluters.

Christchurch is holding a colourful, creative and family-friendly Week of Climate Action for people of all ages and interests, to send a strong message to our leaders that we want REAL CLIMATE ACTION. New Zealand needs to CUT THE CARBON and transition to clean energy and industries.
